

Global OpEx Solutions

Seminar

Trng. Code: PDPL-V01

Product development is typically the largest discretionary expense and a CHAOS survey in 2004 revealed an average of 56% cost overrun across projects. In addition, many projects fail to meet customer intent and are exited without completion. A well-designed and managed product development process will minimize these shortcomings. Participants will discover how to embark on a sustainable and successful product development process. Each participant will gain an understanding of the key components and a proven process to develop the right product solutions for their customer needs.
